Pamela Bauer Mueller Author

Ms. Mueller, a national award-winning author, has dreamed of introducing her readers to the history of the Golden Isles since moving to Georgia. She has now written two historical fiction books featuring local characters.

Ms. Mueller was the 2006 Winner of the Georgia Author of the Year Award-Children's/Young Adult Literature, as well as a 2006 Independent Publisher Book Awards Finalist in the Multicultural Category for her first historical novel entitled Neptune's Honor.

Her newest historical fiction, An Angry Drum Echoed: Mary Musgrove, Queen of the Creeks, is based on the true story of a Creek/Englishwoman who became an emissary and interpreter for General Oglethorpe when he landed in Savannah to found the colony of Georgia. Mary smoothed the path to cooperation between the Indians and the colonists, perhaps single-handedly insuring the survival of colonial Georgia.

Ms. Mueller resides on Jekyll Island with her husband Michael (whom she first met at a class at the Federal Law Enforcement Training Center here) and two cats, Jasper and Sukey Spice. She was raised in Oregon and graduated from Lewis and Clark College in Portland, Oregon. She worked as a flight attendant for Pan American Airlines before marrying and moving to Mexico City, where she lived for eighteen years, teaching English, modeling and acting. After returning to the United States, Pamela worked for 12 years as a U.S. Customs Inspector.

Ms. Mueller took an early retirement from the U.S. Customs Service to become a full-time author.

She read excerpts from her newest historical fiction for club members.
